The 1991 census will be the second taken in Israel. Under the Mandate there were two: one in 1922 and another in 1931.

The first census in the State was held on November 8, 1948 when the entire population — except for 19,000 census-takers — was locked indoors for seven hours under curfew restrictions. This prevented persons from being able to register twice. The census-takers then went from door to door collecting the questionnaires which had been prepared and filled in by census-takers a fortnight earlier. The census served three main purposes: To gather statistical information, to e oilset material upon which identity cards were issued, and to prepare material for a Voters' Register.

A selling-high triptych depicting in oils Biblical themes and the holocaust was on Thursday delivered to Yad vashem in Jerusalem. Painted in 1949 by an Hungarian Jewish artist, Lipot (Haim Tehuda) Herman, it was brought as a gift from the U.B. by Mr. Meyer Weisgal, Chairman of the Executive Council of the Weismann Institute.

The triptych is about three metres high and over four metres wide when open. The entire centre-piece portrays the prophecy of Exekiel on the Resurrection of Israel, while the remainder is divided into sections representing the holocaust. The style is not modern, and the triptych is framed in gilt. Given to Yad vaShem Stations for Soldiers Stations for Soldiers

Over 1,200 fans saw 11 fights, some of which were on a relatively high level.

The 'incident' occurred at the end of the last round between middle-weights Eli Kalif, of Ramat Gan Maccabh, and Nissim Gerbo, of Tel Aviv Hapoel. After the referee. Mr. Y. Granowsky, had warned Gerro twice for fouling, the latter hit Kalif below the belt and knocked him down.

The referee counted up to ten, but then, to everyone's surprise, raised up the semi-conscious Kalif and announced him the winner. He explained his decision on the grounds of Gerro's foul tactics.

THE proposed admission of Arab workers as full members of the Histadrut may well open a new era IN THE ry of Israel's HISTADRUT munity, which is nearing the quar-ter-million mark. When the proposal comes up for approval before today's meeting of the Mapai Cen-tral Committee, the decade-long process of total in tegration of Arab workers into the Israel General Federation of Labour will have reached its final stage. Coming as it does only a fortnight after the meeting between the Prime Minister and Arab M.K.'s to discuss recent mK's to discuss recent improvements in the con-dition of Israel's Arab community, the proposal to give equal status to Jewish and Arab members of the Histadrut is seen as a further step in the implemen-tation of a general and well-planned policy of gradually absorbing is-rael's Arab citizens into

Although it may have been difficult to discern any coordinated Government policy towards the Arab community in the past decade, the fruits of this policy are becoming slowly more apparent with the noticeable advances being made in the various spheres of Arab life in Is-rael.
